

NEW YORK TIMES

EISENHOWER IS HOST

Entertains at White House Stag
Dinner, Accent on Sports

WASHINGTON, March 23 (UP)

President Eisenhower entertained at another White House stag dinner tonight, with the accent on sports.

Among his guests were Ed Dudley, the professional at the Augusta, Ga., National Golf Club; Ralph R. Arnold, the Cherry Hills Country Club pro at Denver; Lon Little, Columbia University football coach; Floyd D. Acres, Washington auto dealer and one of President Eisenhower's favorite fishing companions.

Other guests included Edward Anthony, publisher of Collier's Magazine; Joseph P. Binns, executive vice president of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel; Clifford R. Case, president of the Fund for the Republic, Inc.; Allen W. Dulles, Central Intelligence Director; William P. Hobby, president of The Houston (Tex.) Post and husband of Oveta Culp Hobby, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Arthur A. Seeligson, San Antonio, Tex., oil man; Eustace Seeligman, New York attorney; Roger Steffan, special assistant to the assistant to the President, and Thomas E. Stephens, President Eisenhower's appointment secretary.

CPYRGHT